

Contents of the chapter

Preamble
*d*iscours₁637, in 'Discourse on Method', shares his clear-sighted perception on the contribution of science, rendering us

'e *m*an₁864, in 'Man and Nature :
Or, Physical Geography as Modified by Human Action,' offers a methodical and lucid insight through a sensitive approach to *d*iscours₁637 and later elaborated upon by *m*an₁864, is also mirrored in our language. While nature is often allegorically é

*biogeochemistry*¹⁹⁹¹ in the pursuit of the most fundamental understanding of what makes planet Earth unique :
life, whose space of expression is the biosphere, and its geological manifestation vernadsky biosphere¹⁹²⁹. This term was initiated scales, a manifestation of the immutability of the laws of life on the geochemical level. vernadsky biosphere¹⁹²⁹ particularly biosphere¹⁹²⁹. Nevertheless, it was first and foremost born of and evolved with the study of human perturbation of the biosphere *induced physical, chemical, and biological changes to the Earth system distinguish our era from the Holocene*²

$$\frac{15}{p_2^2}$$

$c_{o2_2001}, sarmiento_{ocean_2006}^{16}$

$K_{C^*}^1$

$K_{C^*}^2$

19
-
 pK
 $\leq$ $\neq$
 pK
 $<$

21
??
??

22
 X_i
B
 i,T f^+ f
+
+
 2
 $??$
 $??$
 $??$
 $\dot{p}$

